

Vestergaard & Co

Best Employee eLearning Solutions Provider 2019 - Denmark

Rapid advancements in both business and technology mean that corporations are having to invest heavily in new courses for staff. Offering clients a full range of training, consulting and off-the-shelf e-learning courses, Vestergaard & Co is a full-service provider of e-learning solutions. Discover their range of products as we learn more about their Scandinavia-wide levels of success.

Working with private companies, public organisations and industry associations, Vestergaard & Co's ability to swiftly incorporate new industry trends and developments into e-learning resources is just one of the many reasons for its success. Not only offering the latest knowledge and education for company staff, the firm's flexibility also allows it to fit the needs of the client into its services, creating unique e-learning resources.

Companies in today's fast-paced corporate environment have to ensure that all staff are regularly kept up-to-date with industry developments and are able to act on them should they be required to do so. Vestergaard & Co's ongoing mission is to deliver e-learning that helps companies achieve this, through engaging and interesting material that leads to staff learning new skills, abilities and goals to meet.

Vestergaard & Co mainly meet this goal through its extensive network of hugely talented employees and suppliers. Creativity begets creativity, and so it takes talented individuals to create cutting-edge courses and solutions that match the target group, depending on the client. It is also vitally important that the firm understand the client, their culture, and their employees, so that the content fits with what they need for their unique requirements.

Upon working with a new client, Vestergaard & Co always undertake considerable efforts to discover what the client's needs and wishes are in order to gain an optimal e-learning course or e-learning infrastructure. That knowledge is ascertained through key meetings, both internally and with the client. Following those meetings, the findings and suggestions are then presented, making sure that all parties understand one another and are aligned towards a common goal.

As the process gains speed and moves along, constant communication between Vestergaard & Co and the client is a must. Open channels of communication can help with content adjustment along the way, rather than having to change large bulks in the final stages of development. That way, courses and infrastructure are delivered successfully and on time.

Ultimately, innovation is a huge aspect of Vestergaard & Co's business, and plays a key role in their enduring success. New tools and technologies are constantly being developed, so for the firm to tap into that is not just helpful, but necessary. Moreover, by visiting exhibitions and spending time at the office researching new technology, the firm can access and develop better e-learning resources.

Of course, the innovation doesn't lie with Vestergaard & Co alone, but also the clients' willingness to be adventurous and try new technologies in their e-learning processes. Without those clients willing to partner alongside the firm and allow their staff to experience new learning, the firm would have great difficulty in integrating new technology so quickly.

During a time where companies are increasingly being told to update their workforce's knowledge or face being replaced by artificial intelligence, it is refreshing to see Vestergaard & Co turning the tables on technology. Maximising the technological potential, this small Danish firm is instrumental in developing new e-learning resources, helping staff retain their jobs whilst enabling them to be more knowledgeable and efficient.

Company: Vestergaard & Co
Contact: Rene Vestergaard
Website: <https://vesco.dk/>